

The most important need in 2020 is connection - QWERTY Vol. 4 is designed to do just that - through correspondence!

All workshops are open and free to the public.

Workshops are limited and require registration

Monday 14 September 2020 - 10 am

Connecting with words

Zoom Workshop taught by poet Maya Stein

1 hour

Recommended for ages 16+

In this workshop, attendees will discover new ways of finding inspiration everywhere, even when they're stuck inside. Maya will share her long-standing "10-Line Tuesday" poetry practice as an example of finding structure to sustain creativity. She will also share ideas around creative list-making and locating fresh sources of inspiration. Participants are invited to send in photos of their work to be shown throughout the week on social media and can send actual pieces to The Creativity Caravan for a presentation in 2021.

Tuesday 14 September 2020 - 7pm

Collage Anything

Zoom Workshop taught by mixed-media artist Amy Tingle

1 hour

15 participant

Recommended for ages 16+

Learn collage techniques with Amy as she shows examples of mail art. Discuss collaging on alternative materials, using what you have on hand. Partner up with another participant and mail each other artwork. Participants are invited to send in photos of their work to be shown throughout the week on social media and will be invited to send actual pieces to The Creativity Caravan for a presentation in 2021

Wednesday 16 September 2020 - 2pm

Lost Art of Letter Writing

Zoom Workshop taught by Maya Stein and Amy Tingle

1 hour

Recommended for ages 8+

Amy and Maya, co-founders of The Creativity Caravan, explore the lost art of letter writing and share found letters from inside the case of a typewriter they bought. Especially during the pandemic, alternate forms of communication have become even more valuable. Amy and Maya will provide ideas and inspiration around correspondence through the USPS. Participants are invited to send in photos of their work to be shown throughout the week on social media and can send actual pieces to The Creativity Caravan for a presentation in 2021.

Thursday 17 September 2020 – 3:30 pm

Thankful Thursday

Zoom Workshop taught by L. Schnable Kaldor

1 hour

15 participants

Recommended for ages 4+

Friday 18 September 2020

Personalized Typewriter Poetry

15 Participants

Participants will send The Creativity Caravan a word and from it an original poem will be created on a vintage typewriter. Throughout the day, images of the poetry will be displayed on Greenville Drive-In's social media and each poem will be sent to the recipient through USPS.

The Creativity Caravan

In 2013, Amy Tingle and Maya Stein co-founded The Creativity Caravan with a desire to build community through creative action, and to deliver creative experiences to people everywhere. Together, they have 15 years' experience facilitating art and writing workshops for children and adults, and have spent a combined 30 years refining their own practice as writers and visual artists.

Their vintage caravan serves as our creative hub and home away from “home.” With a unique menu of offerings for all ages, The Creativity Caravan invites everyone to the table. Amy and Maya love to partner with schools, libraries, bookstores, restaurants, corporations, community centers, and other organizations to design and facilitate inspiring and inclusive programs for all ages.

thecreativitycaravan.com

Lu Ann Schnable Kaldor

Lu Ann is graduate of The Fashion Institute of Technology and Marywood University. Her career has run the gamut from retail management to teaching (3rd grade), product development and design to marketing. It wasn't until she became a mother that she realized the common thread in these choices was storytelling. In 2014 Lu Ann started writing children's books to fill the voids she found on the shelves. Her illustrated storybooks are designed to help parents start conversations about topics like death, self-acceptance, and diversity, in an easy and accessible way.

For the past five summers she has run a recycled art program for children at Camp Hillcroft. She's looking forward to bringing her slightly messy style of creativity to our drive in.